or for children appearing in exams; even if she makes a social visit, she will go inform the ‘photo’ and then go out. Her faith in Guruji is so strong, she believes that Guruji listens and responds and any problem can be left best to Him to redress by this manner of communication.

Satisfied that Guruji had heard her, she turned and started walking towards her bed. She heard a voice. The voice merely said “Ambrolite- S.” She heard distinctly this word, with a very emphatic stress on ‘S’ in Ambrolite - S.

For a minute she stood still, astonished that she had heard something. She had not expected any voice to be heard. But her mind was not on the voice. She had her mind working furiously to decipher what she had heard. Suddenly like a flash of lightning it dawned on her. Ambrolite - S was the syrup which had been prescribed by the doctor for cough. For a very long time this syrup was never used and Jalaja mami had even forgotten its existence. But now she was able to distinctly recall the name and the application.

Rushing to switch on the tubelight, she went to the cupboard and searched. She knew where it was kept. The syrup was administered to Mukund mama. Immediately his coughing stopped.

Jalaja went back to her sleep, more tired than before but with a sense of immense relief that she had laid her hands on a solution for Mukund mama’s coughing should this recur in future. Probably she did not realize that apart from this achievement, she had proved to herself what unshakeable faith in Guruji does to the devotee. She had received Guruji’s communication instantly!

She is not able to place the voice. She does not think it was the voice of Guruji – which she proudly says she can recognise any day anywhere. But that does not matter to her. Her problem was solved by Guruji. What a sensation – she spoke to Guruji and got a response. Should she not feel thrilled about it? Yes. Although she does not gloat over the fact that she heard the voice, somewhere this episode touched her deeply. She brings it up in her conversation with other devotees when she talks about how Guruji takes care.

There have been other examples she gives about how her ‘communication methodology’ has given answers in other problem-situations. But that is not for now. Those instances could be reserved for future issues of Satsanga.

News from Alamadhi

The fury of Nature seen in December 2015 and December 2016 (Cyclone Vardha) has cumulatively dealt a nasty blow to our Alamadhi Centre. The compound wall collapsed at several places.

The current financial year is witnessing a painful attempt to dress up our wounds. The priority has changed from developing further our activities to putting proper infrastructure firmly on ground.

The cost of building walls is Rs. 45 lakhs including compound walls for two plots outside the main Centre. It would have been impossible to undertake such a task in this financial year due to the enormity of the project. By the grace of Guruji one well-wisher has come forward to sponsor this entire project over a span of two years. Work is in progress.

The sponsor wishes to remain anonymous.
We are very grateful to the sponsor for the rescue act.

ERRATA

In the previous issue of Satsanga in giving the list of donors who had responded to our appeal, we had inadvertently missed to mention the name of five donors (Rs. 10,000 or more):

| No. | Name                    | Rs.    |
|-----|-------------------------|--------|
| 1   | Lalitha Janardhanan     | 15,000 |
| 2   | Vijaya Nathan           | 60,000 |
| 3   | Murty M.S.R.            | 20,000 |
| 4   | Raji Narayanan          | 10,000 |
| 5   | Malathi Balasubramanian | 36,000 |

It's important for us to say that your support means so much to us for which we are very thankful, and sorry that your names got missed out in the list.

Every year Feb. 19th is a time for self-appraisal in the sense what have we done in the by-gone year and what more should we do.

Looking back it is gratifying to know that two of our projects started in a small way are national projects. The girl child project and Rubella vaccination project are taken up in a big way by the govt. and Rubella vaccine is now being administered along with measles vaccine all over the country.

But more important is the success that we have achieved in treating polycystic ovarian diseases which is a major cause of infertility. A number of women yearning for a child attend our Gandhinagar peripheral clinic. Ten such patients were investigated and followed up. Six of them conceived and two have delivered. I will now briefly write about the two lucky ladies in this and the next issue of Satsanga.

First patient is Mahalakshmi, a 26-year old lady, married for five years, anxious to conceive. Both she and her partner were investigated and she was found to have Polycystic Ovarian Disease (PCOD). She was started on Metformin tablets. Within two months of therapy she conceived and went through a normal pregnancy. But her baby was extremely small at the time of birth. The baby weighed just 1.5 kgs at birth and had to be in NICU for nearly three months. After discharge from the hospital he is growing normally, though some effects of extreme low birth weight are still there.

About the second patient Nithya, I will write in the next issue.
